

Published based on Tips for Planning a Costa Rica Vacation

Tips for Planning a Costa Rica Vacation

Weather in Costa Rica

Looking for a map of Costa Rica to help you plan a vacation to the country? Click that link for a good map list. Use those maps along with these ideas and you be off to a great start planning your vacation. You'll see some other links in this article to places and attractions you won't want to miss. In total this page should make a good resource in planning your trip. We are here to help with questions. Call or email us from any page this page links to.

Costa Rica's Regions

Eight regions of the country make up the landscape and differing climates. Understanding how Costa Rica is laid out is easier with a regions map. There are numerous micro climates in each of the major regions. The Costa Rican government protects the countries natural resources through many agencies and processes.

Costa Rica Elevations Map

Plans for a great vacation will start with knowing what you are generally interested in seeing and doing. Geographically quite diverse, Costa Rica rises to over 12,000 feet. Costa Rica's highest point is on top of Mt. Chirripo, close to San Isidro Del General. In fact, Costa Rica boasts all temperate zones on the planet except the highest arctic zone and the lowest desert zone. Be sure to research the local weather in Costa Rica for the regions you want to visit so you can bring the appropriate clothing.

Map of Major Roads of Costa Rica

Almost every where in the country is accessible by road even though they are mostly unpaved and made of rock and dirt. The major network of paved roads in the country will help you move from one region to another quickly. You would be smart to rent a 4x4 when visiting Costa Rica. Taxi's will cost you a bundle so consider that before you decide not to rent a car. Just don't speed no matter what you do. Tickets are costly.

Osa Area Map

We are available to help with your trip planning. We are located near the Osa Peninsula and would like to suggest that you visit this part of the country when you come down. It's an amazingly diverse region of the planet and super exotic.

Find your paradise and then live there. I now reside with my family in an incredible sustainable community with diverse people making a new home for themselves in an incredible setting. The food producing community is great for abundant living. The resort atmosphere offers a lifestyle that is both relaxed and with many things to do.

You can also find this article published on Tips for Planning a Costa Rica Vacation, and on the tag pages local weather, micro climates, page, planet, Weather, weather in costa rica.