

Published based on Why Do People Like Taking A Holiday In France?

Why Do People Like Taking A Holiday In France?

When it comes to the best holiday destination in Europe, the number one answer is France; in fact it has actually been voted as the best place to visit in the World as well. But why do so many people choose France as their number one? Why do so many people in the World talk about its capital city Paris all the time? The numerous things that you can see and do in France is probably the main reason and anyone who has ever been there will agree. From the French Alps to the French Riviera it seems that there is something to suit everybody.

For a lot of us in the UK, the French weather is one attraction. We can never really depend on good weather at home but it always seems to be sunny in France from spring to near the end of autumn; especially in the South of the country. Most of France has mild winters, but you can depend on skiing in the French Alps. But it is not just the nice weather which makes the country a popular choice. The French culture is very impressive and their class and style is something that you really don't experience anywhere else on the planet.

It is extremely easy to get around France too. It is simple to get to where you want to go because of the fantastic roads and the excellent choice of public transport. For us in the UK there are quite a number of ways for us to reach France but the shortest and most convenient way is through the Channel Tunnel which takes just thirty five minutes from Folkestone to Calais. France is a very tourist orientated country and there are plenty of hotels available; it is possible to find accommodation to suit all budgets. The food is praised around the world and if you like wine you will be in heaven. France is really one great country to head to on your travels.

City breaks Europe style are becoming very fashionable. France hotels are top-notch when it comes to thinking about city breaks in Europe. A lot of them are pet friendly hotels to boot. City breaks are ideal for that special weekend away.

You can also find this article published on Why Do People Like Taking A Holiday In France?, and on the tag pages calais france, city breaks europe, French, french weather, holiday, Weather.